ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

 A doorbell arrangement identifies visitors. The doorbell arrangement includes a user interface that allows a visitor to enter his visitor or user code. The doorbell system is configured to identify visitors by recognizing user codes. The doorbell system generates response signals specific to each visitor. The response signals include audible sounds such as musical tones or voice recordings. The response signals also include radio frequency signals transmitted to remote locations. The doorbell arrangement may include a computer such as a personal computer.